From the Office of Dean Kaplan:

Events which are scheduled for the general public must have advance notice in the Bulletin. The nature of the event, date, time, place, and any admissions price must be publicized well in advance of the event. The purpose of this advance knowledge is to make it possible for the telephone operators to answer questions with a degree of accuracy.

Again we repeat that the college telephone operators cannot act as a message center for personal messages. We are equipped to handle only college traffic.

We all must observe the conservation of energy in any way we can. If you are the last to leave a room please shut the lights, do not leave electrical equipment plugged in or on the "on position" unnecessarily.

Those of us who post posters or notices in the college must bear the responsibility of taking them down when the need expires. Please let us not keep notices or posters up for an unnecessary length of time.

"Now Is The Time To Pile Up Memories, Not Possessions", an article by Lila Chalpin of the Critical Studies Division describing the problems and pleasures of raising a family in an expensive urban area such as Boston, was featured in the September issue of Medical Economics.

A note from Head Librarian Ben Hopkins:

It has occurred to me that it would be a real contribution to the college if students and faculty would jot down their impressions, in a paragraph or two, of the Centennial Celebration at City Hall last Tuesday evening and give them to me for inclusion in the guest book which will be placed in the college archives for the use of future generations.

The essay could take almost any form from the witty to the downright factual. The archives already contain some fascinating material written by faculty and students of other years.

Because of the holiday, the deadline for accepting material for the Bulletin of November 26-30 will be Tuesday, November 20, at 4:00 P.M. instead of Wednesday November 21. The cooperation of committee secretaries in notifying the Bulletin of scheduled meetings in time for their announcement in the Bulletin is appreciated. All items may be left in Mr. Butler's mailbox.
